ROLLING HISTORY...

CARROLLTON

That's what you are riding on each time you step onto a New Orleans streetcar. The line is over 170 years old. It was originally a steam railroad connecting the City of Carrollton to New Orleans. With the city filling in between, the railroad evolved into a horse-car line. It became an electric trolley line in 1893. The cars running now were built in 1924 and are the last conventional trolleys in service. So climb aboard and be a part of ROLLING HISTORY. Enjoy the ride!

Today's Carrollton area formed the upriver edge of Bienville's 1719 land grant from the King of France and was first incorporated in 1833. The district saw its strongest growth during the period from 1880 to 1937, after being annexed by New Orleans from Jefferson Parish. Having a rich history, Carrollton has been home to Mahalia Jackson, Allen Toussaint and Pulitzer Prize winning author John Kennedy Toole. It has seen musical "cutting contests" between Buddy Bolden and John Robichaux's bands, been the reputed site of the House of the Rising Sun and is home to Xavier University, founded by St. Katharine Drexel. Be sure to visit the interesting shops and wonderful restaurants in the Riverbend at St. Charles Avenue and along Maple and Oak Streets. These quaint shopping districts have served as sets in countless films, including Robert DeNiro's Angelheart and more recently, All the King's Men starring Sean Penn and Jude Law.
